Investment objective

The objective is to achieve capital growth by buying shares in companies whose recovery potential is not appreciated by the market and to sell them when this potential is recognised. The nature of unrecognised recovery potential may be based on macro economic, industry, sector specific or stock specific issues. Stock selection will involve the identification of a catalyst capable of triggering and sustaining a recovery in each specific stock selection. The fund has the flexibility to invest in companies of all sizes and to hold up to 20% in European shares; it will be benchmarked against the FTSE All-Share index.

Investment style

Selecting a recovery play requires identifying a reason for the share price weakness and a trigger for recovery. We ask why the shares have fallen (macro, industry/sector-specific or stock-specific issues). We then look for a catalyst for change and a rise in the share price (macro recovery; collapse of competition; management change; return of confidence). We use both qualitative and quantitative screens. We use standard qualitative analysis (looking at balance sheet strength, quality of the management and product, competitive advantage and barriers to entry), and more quantitative analysis to determine the value we will attribute to the business. To this extent, we use certain value ratios and look at the assumptions upon which those valuations are based. Finally, risk assessment remains a vital part of our process, and our bets are not at the expense of the overall balance of the fund.

The Rathbone Recovery Fund is a vehicle for all stages of the economic cycle.

Investment prospects

Recovery hopes have driven an impressive rise in markets in recent months. A combination of better than expected economic data, second quarter earnings and emerging market growth have now led investors to review their prospects for economies and markets into 2010. We believe the market is looking overbought at this current time, and valuations appear stretched. Although we see the potential for GDP figures to be revised upwards into 2010, we remain realistic that these are early days and issues exist that could still drag the market back. Economies are only just troughing along the bottom; there is a chance that Q2 profits have masked underlying weak consumer demand. Question marks hang over the sustainability of a recovery in China. So in the very short term, expect risk trades to continue to outperform, but a reality check might be due. Of course, any such setback would afford us great entry points into select areas of the market, such as the small-cap arena, financials and property.
